TIMBER LEAGUE

There is going to be a little argument about second place tonight, as the Rainiers and Placerville Lumber meet, both claiming the position. First place Calders meet the third place Standard Oil and the last place Beacons meet the fourth place Associated.

PONY EXPRESS LEAGUE

Paul R. (could it be Revere?) Smith climbed on his horse last night and led off for the Gene Morrisons with a 213, which seems to have been high game for the evening. Paul did this during the first game, and that's the one that the Gene Morrisons won, the other two being taken by the Lions.

AMADOR COUNTY FAIR TO OPEN JULY 31ST, END AUGUST 2

The date for the twenty sixth District Agricultural Association Fair in Plymouth has been set for July 31st, August 1st and 2nd. The board of directors at a recent meeting changed the date to more than a month earlier than has been the custom to take advantage of more favorable weather.

Mrs. Goula Wait, secretary of the association, was named delegate to attend the convention of the Western Fairs Association in Los Angeles on December 10th, 11th and 12th.

The Amador County Fair will receive in 1942 a total of $8,784.60, an increase of 10 per cent over last year's premium money contributed by the state.

DIAMOND SPRINGS NATIVE LAID AT REST AT LODI

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Lodi for James G. Woodson, 85, native of Diamond Springs, who died Saturday at Stockton. The service was conducted by Dr. Benjamin Smith, pastor of the Christian Church, at Stockton.

Mr. Woodson left this county as a child with his parents and the family settled at Lodi and had remained in that vicinity since. The deceased had been a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge at Galt since 1881 and in 1884 married Miss Mary M. Brown, who survives him.

The Normal to January 1 is 13.99.

Rainfall Tuesday and Tuesday night left a total of 2.75 inches in Placerville to raise the local total to 7.92 inches as of noon on Wednesday, as compared with a December 1 "normal" of 7.05 inches.

The storm was, apparently, general throughout the county. The State Division of Highways office at Smith Flat heard from Auburn that the American River was well up near that point. The South Fork was reported well up near Lotus, but not in danger of flooding the highway.

The highways office reported "about four inches" of snow on the Echo Summit, not enough to interfere with travel. Chains are advised for cars going beyond Twin Bridges.

The only casualty of the storm appeared to be A. L. Fisher, of Diamond Springs, and his car.

YREKA. (UP)—The death of the founder of the "state of Jefferson" failed today to dampen the secession spirit of "the last frontier"—the corridor of counties that border the California-Oregon state line.

For while the Modoc county board of supervisors was announcing its withdrawal from the movement, Trinity county, California, climbed on the bandwagon.

The founder of the 49th state and its governor-designate was Gilbert Gable, mayor of Port Orford, Ore., no hick-town character but a veteran public relations man who wore suits tailored in New York, won honors as an amateur explorer, and

FIGHT TO SAVE CAMP IS LOST

Rumor Says Army Might Take Site As Post For Conscientious Objectors

Official word that civic efforts to maintain the CCC camp at Snowline had been of no avail was received Wednesday from Representative Harry L. Englebright, at Washington.

In a letter to Wallace M. Ripley, secretary of the chamber of commerce, which had made representations to the congressman in behalf of retaining the camp, Mr. Englebright states he has "been using every effort to have the camp retained."

He inclosed a copy of a letter received by himself from Charles H. Taylor, assistant director of the CCC, in which Mr. Taylor notes the lack of enrollment in the CCC and also requests of the Bureau of the Budget that "a very substantial reserve be set up against the CCC appropriation for the current fiscal year."

Mr. Taylor states that a careful study of the entire conservation program in California was made and that it was found "that this camp could be discontinued with the least embarrassment to the conservation work in California as a whole."

Orders for closing the camp effective December 1 had been issued and the camp was closed on that date, approximately sixty enrollees being transferred to Camp Tuolumne near Yosemite.

Rumors were heard Wednesday that the Army is interested in the Snowline Camp as a possible site for a labor camp for conscientious objectors under the Selective Service Act. This report could not be confirmed.

Eldorado Forest reported that John Johnson, work superintendent at the camp, will remain in charge for a few days. It was also indicated that Howard Cullers, forest service fire lookout, may be stationed at the camp as a watchman in the event that there is no other immediate disposition of the site.

William Stultz, for his niece report from the state convention. It was decided by the Grange to have a pot luck supper at their next meeting at 7 p. m. Wednesday, Dec. 10, due to the fact that election of officers is to be held and would finish up at such a late hour. Mae Kline, chairman of the home economics club, announced the next meeting of the ladies club would take place at the home of Minnie Marchini on next Tuesday at 10 a. m. followed by a pot luck lunch. As usual the mystery box was claimed by Mrs. Minnie Marchini after which refreshments of home made cakes and coffee were served.

We are asked to inform the party or parties who ran into or backed their car against the large wire gate on the Rasmussen ranch and broke it down last Sunday morning to get around and repair the damage at once to avoid further trouble.

MAX BAER'S STORE SALE IS PENDING

Court Approval On Plans Sought In Petition To Be Heard On Monday

A petition is on file in Superior Court asking approval of the sale by Mrs. Edith B. Baer, executrix of the estate of Max Baer, deceased, of Max Baer's Store, a part of the estate.

Negotiations looking to the transfer of the business to Messrs. Leverson and Schneider, of 71 First Street, San Francisco, are understood to have been concluded, subject to the court's approval.

The petition is to be heard on Monday.

Max Baer's store is the successor to a pioneer men's clothing business established in the community and on the same site in the early 1860's by the firm of Mierson and Jewell. This firm was succeeded by A. Mierson which later became A. Mierson and Sons, and conducted a banking business in a part of the building.

In 1909, the late Mr. Baer became associated with Otto Newcomb in ownership of the clothing business and five years later Mr. Baer acquired his partner's interest in the business and continued actively in charge as sole owner and proprietor until his recent death.

Representatives of the firm to whom it is petitioned that the business be sold indicated that an announcement as to possible plans for the business will be deferred pending the hearing upon the petition in Superior Court.

Girl's Rescue Is Featured

Cherie Bond Is Named "Hero Of Week" In Sunday Radio Program

Cherie Bond didn't know it then, but as a result of her hectic rescue of Lawrence Thiele from the river at Chili Bar one day last summer, she has been named "Hero of the Week" and her feat will be dramatized Sunday afternoon over radio stations of the Mutual-Don Lee network, at 4:45 o'clock.

Further, Cherie will receive a valor award medal from the sponsors of the program.

Cherie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bond, of Placerville, and with her brother and Lawrence and his family was at the river one day last summer on a picnic. The children were swinging out over the river on a rope, and then dropping into the water.

One time, Lawrence swung out too far, and dropped into deeper water than he could get out of. When Cherie's brother saw that Lawrence was in trouble—and serious trouble, too—he called the matter to Cherie's attention, for she, being hard of hearing, hadn't heard Lawrence's shouts.

Cherie was the only one present who could swim well enough to attempt to rescue Lawrence, and that's what she did. She got to him, grabbed him by the hair, and brought him near enough to shore for others to drag him to the bank.

"Bulb Snatchers" Face Inquiry By Police

Somebody has been going around filching the little colored globes out of the trees which have been lighted as a part of the community Christmas decorations.

Chief of Police Ralph Jones says it would be bad enough if the globes were of any use to the parties who are taking them, but he has learned that the globes won't "work" elsewhere.

A quiet investigation of the affair has been under way for several days and there are excellent possibilities that someone may be called upon to do some explaining.

George Maul Passes State Bar Tests

"Hello, dad, I passed." This was the telephone message which came Tuesday evening to Attorney Thomas Maul from his son, George Maul.

Graduated in June at the University of California following graduation four years earlier in El Dorado County high school, Mr. Maul is connected with the credit department of the Golden State Dairy, at San Francisco.

LAND BANK SEEKS TO VOID IRRIGATION DISTRICT BILLS

A test case to determine whether the Nevada Irrigation District can refuse to deliver water to the Federal Land Bank because water bills were left unpaid by the previous owners of the property has been filed by the financial institution in the Placer county superior court.

The bank asks that it be permitted to purchase water without paying a bill of $1,035 which previous owners had failed to meet.

The irrigation district has refused to deliver or sell water to the bank for use on the land until the earlier bill is paid.

BRITISH FORCE RALLIES FOR LIBYA DRIVE

Japanese Newspapers Increase Denunciations Of Roosevelt And Hull

TOKYO. (UP)—Newspapers, steadily intensifying their denunciations of the United States as hope waned that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull would bow before Japanese expansionist aims, said today that success or failure of negotiations at Washington was entirely dependent on the American attitude.

They charged with increased bitterness that the United States was leading a drive for complete encirclement of Japan.

By UNITED PRESS

British armored forces in the western desert were reconcentrated today for a third—and it was hoped final—attempts to drive a new steel wedge from Sidi Rezegh to Tobruk and again encircle Gen. Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps.

The Germans were in control of Sidi Rezegh and Bir El Hamid and had succeeded in uniting their armored forces and cutting the wedge which the New Zealand force had driven from Rezegh to Tobruk.

From the British point of view the most optimistic factor in the situation was their continued control of Ed Duda. Ed Duda is a high escarpment southeast of Tobruk, which dominates the Axenstrasse, the highway built by the Germans and Italians to by-pass Tobruk.

On the Russian front the Germans were virtually silent concerning Rostov and had not too much to say about Moscow. The Nazi high command reported "gains" on the Moscow front as a result of attacks paced by divebombers and tanks.

Moscow said that Germans are trying to break through to the Soviet capital at any cost but made plain that advances are being maintained only at a slow pace in the face of repeated Soviet counterattacks.

3 Counties Want Lone Fugitives

Highway Patrol Jails Pair In Humphreys Car Theft Near Lake Tahoe

Donald Monroe and Robert Ellis, each 19, who were arrested late on Tuesday afternoon at Lake Tahoe three days after they had escaped the Preston School of Industry at Ione, were the most popular young men in three counties on Wednesday.

Amador County wanted them for trial on burglary and grand theft charges; Sacramento County wanted them for trial on burglary and grand theft charges; and El Dorado County held them, on grand theft charges and with the possibility they might be charged with summer homes burglaries.

The two were nabbed Tuesday afternoon east of Bijou by officer Burwell Reynolds, of the state highway patrol, as they sped toward the state line.

Officers Charles Flick and Charles Patchen went to Lake Valley to assist Reynolds in bringing them in and on the way back, the car in which Officer Patchen was following the other two officers and their prisoners, skidded into the bank and turned over on its side east of Whitehall. The car was badly damaged. Patchen was unhurt.

Ellis and Monroe are charged with the theft Sunday night of the automobile of Mrs. Norma Humphreys, in Placerville. The car was recovered Tuesday at Sacramento. Whether they may be charged with summer homes burglaries was yet to be determined. Officials said that they face "several charges of burglary" and grand theft charges in Amador County and in Sacramento County.

Sacramento officers were here Tuesday night in an attempt to take custody of the two and on Wednesday, District Attorney Allen Martin and Sheriff George Lucret were here from Amador County.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Raffetto were among those at the "big game" on Saturday, and it is reported that "Raff" sat next to Carleton Hickman.

Faulty Speech Of Children Due to Parents

By GARY CLEVELAND MYERS, P.L.D.

● The baby beginning speech will form statements which sound strange to some adults. Some parents, thinking them "cute" will imitate them and use these mistakes when talking to the child. Other parents will even employ "baby talk." Most "baby talk" by youngsters is imitation of adults. A child who is read to from his early second year will usually employ fairly good English if his parents do.

As a rule, only those parents who themselves use correct English, worry about the youngster's grammar. They really need not worry since he will hear good English from them. Wishing to be big, he gradually will adopt the good speech of older persons about him.

Therefore, it is not necessary to correct the child. If you do, merely say the right form after him, occasionally and let it go at that.

There is danger that frequent correction and interruption of the child will hamper his expression and cause him to be self-conscious as he speaks. Let alone, the child from three to six may develop delightfully refreshing expression. Let us learn to enjoy it.

The Myers children between the ages 5 and 10 picked up a good deal of bad grammar. We practically never referred to it and they gradually took on fairly good English. Then they adopted slang in the early teens dropping most of that during their last high school years.

Slang is an emotional aid to the young adolescent when he does not have at his command the word to express what he wishes to say. Many children from 10 to 15 invent among their small groups, types of secret language and seem to derive much enjoyment from it. Moreover "Pig Latin" may be used by them with one another. All these efforts of theirs to express themselves in their own way need not worry the understanding parent at all.

A selected list of books on understanding and guiding children happily, at the various age levels, may be had, without cost, by writing me at 225 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp.

"THE MANDARIN HOUSE MURDERS" by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER VII

Once Captain North had replaced his coat he stepped out into the corridor just in time to see Marya Gallian leave the elevator. Apparently Officer Pebble had obeyed orders for on the young woman's heart-shaped face was written no awareness of the shock in store. In fact she flashed North a smile of relief.

"You've made definite headway?"

"A bit."

"Oh, I'm so glad!" Many worried little lines faded from her features. "They told me you were wonderfully clever, but this—"

North raised a deprecating hand. "Be good enough to go downstairs, Mr. Pebble, and telephone Sir Guy that I'll be over to see him shortly."

"Sure. Don't you want me to—?"

"No, just do as I ask." When the heavy figure had disappeared, North drew the girl into a little alcove and said quietly, "You must prepare yourself for something unpleasant, Miss Gallian."

"Unpleasant?" Marya Gallian's hands fluttered up to press her cheeks. "Is—Philip is hurt?"

"I'm afraid so, Miss Gallian. In fact, he's badly hurt."

It seemed impossible that anyone could become so pallid and yet retain consciousness, but this amazing young woman managed it. "He—he's not dead?"

"Hang onto your courage, Miss Gallian."

So swiftly that Captain North had no chance of intercepting her, Marya Gallian ran over to wrench open the door of room 1211. In four swift strides he had caught up with her and was able to see her face when she paused swaying in the doorway. To his accumulating astonishment no expression of mortal anguish was stamped upon her pretty features, only a grimace of disappointed fury.

"Phil—where are you?" Apparently she failed to notice dumpy little Chao Ku standing in a far corner and looking on, expressionless and immobile as a piece of furniture. She started towards the bedroom, but on rounding the couch behind the body sprawled beneath in Gorman Marya Gallian stooped and jerked back the covering.

"Main Gotti!" As from a viper she recoiled.

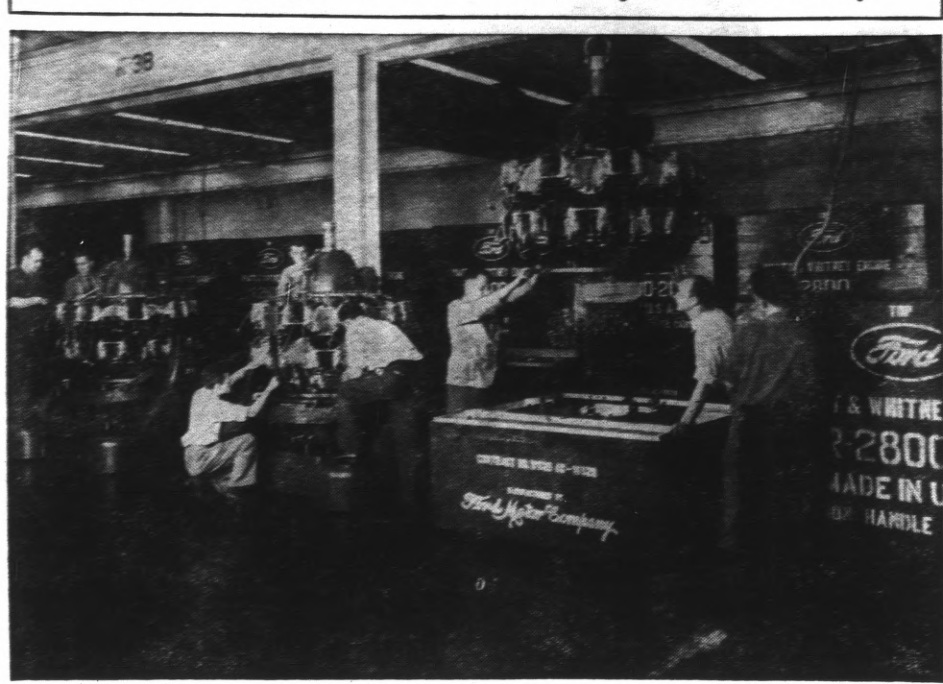

"Why have you done this?" She whirled on North, scarlet with furious uncertainty. "What cheap trick is this?"

The man from G-2 remained as he was, brown features composed and hands dipped negligently into dinner coat pockets. He was looking not at the furious girl but at Chao Ku when he remarked, "You were right."

"Right?" called Marya Gallian, her head aching. Muttering something "Why, you great idiot, that isn't Philip King!"

"—Nor Luther Adams?" Though he already knew the answer, North's query was interjected with electric rapidity.

China's large production of peanuts had its origin in four quarts of selected North Carolina goobers, the Department of Commerce reported.

"I doubt if he saw the necessity," snapped the Gallian girl. Her attitude puzzled North no little. The advent of Dave Spurr, it seemed, was an unpleasant and a bewildering surprise.

"What the devil's that?" For the first time Colonel Spurr had caught sight of the shrouded body and started as if jabbed by a bayonet.

"Don't tell me that's King! I can't be!" A triple row of decorative ribbons glowed when Spurr bent to jerk back the sheet. If Marya Gallian's reaction had been violent, Colonel Spurr's was amazing. He remained rigid, eyes wide and hands outstretched. North could see his thick neck swelling above the gaudy uniform collar.

"Why—why, it's Louie! Ye gods, somebody's knocked him off! Who did this?" He spun about, giving the impression of a steel spring coiled to strike.

"We're trying to find out—You know him?"

"Of course, Louie Larousse was my—well, a corkin' good friend. Say, I bet you know plenty about this." Colonel Spurr swung across the room to snatch at Marya Gallian's shoulder. "Speak up, Sister!"

"Let me go!"

"Who are you?"

"His fiancée."

"In a pig's eye! Adams would he told me if there was a skirt with him." Which statement North labelled with a bright red tag and stored away in his memory.

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW—Venezuela's affairs have frequently caused controversy between great powers. News of them therefore is often of world-significance. SAN FRANCISCO AIRMAN IN RAF TELLS OF DOG FIGHT WITH GERMAN PLANE IN BROADCAST FROM LONDON

San Francisco papers this week report that Pilot Officer George Eric Mitchell 35-year-old former North Point Trade School instructor, told a dramatic story in London recently of how his damaged Stirling bomber "made a fool" out of a Messerschmitt in a dog fight over the German isle of Borkum.

Mitchell is known in El Dorado county, being the husband of Mrs. Edith Landis Mitchell.

Mitchell, a rear gunner for the RAF, was a trade school instructor in San Francisco for three years prior to his enlistment in Canada in October, 1940.

He was a member of the Olympic Club's 45 calibre pistol team and polo team, and belonged to the Sequoia Yacht Club, Redwood City.

Speaking on a British broadcast, Mitchell said his ship, called the "K", and piloted by an English wing commander, was boxed in an anti-aircraft fire.

"We were hit three times," he said. "One shell went right through the starboard wing. It knocked the starboard engine out of action and exploded 150 feet above us."

Then eight German fighters attacked us.

"The Messerschmitts were outmaneuvered and outclassed," Mitchell said. "You would have thought we were flying a fighter and not a four-engined bomber. The wing commander made a fool out of the chap we shot down. Every time the fighter started to run in, he beat him to it."

"Then, when eventually he did come at us we maneuvered so his guns were firing wild above us. With an amazing shot, our other gunner got in a short burst. The fighter fell away in flames."

"I say amazing shot because the closing speed of the two aircraft must have been between 600 and 700 miles an hour," the Associated Press quoted Mitchell.

Last July, Mitchell was awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal for bravery during an RAF raid on the German seaport of Hamburg.

Storm Increases Rain To Normal

Mr. Fisher was driving home from his work at the El Dorado power house shortly after midnight Tuesday night when, on U. S. Route 50 a short distance east of Merryman, a tree fell across the car.

The car was badly crushed and Fisher suffered a broken rib, the loss of a dental plate, and cuts and bruises. He said Wednesday morning that after he had "rescued" his car, he intended to consult a physician for examination.

Fisher endeavored to stop passing traffic to get help but was unable to do so and hiked to Merryman where he found a tenant there awake, and the man helped him to get home.

From Camino came reports of 3.55 inches of rain for Tuesday and Tuesday night. This was said to have been the heaviest rain for a twenty-four hour period recorded there since February of 1937.

In Placerville, the total rainfall for the 24 hours ending Tuesday at 5 o'clock was .85 inches. From that time until noon Wednesday 1.90 inches was recorded, although many insisted that "it seemed like more than that fell."

Mr. and Mrs. Swift Berry were among Caminians at the "big game."

WHAT'S WHAT AT A GLANCE WASHINGTON - WORLD

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

CHAIRMAN WALTER F. GEORGE of the senate's finance committee has predicted that next year's taxes will be terrific. From all indications his forecast is no exaggeration.

Revenue legislation has to originate in Chairman Robert L. Doughton's ways and means committee. In the house of representatives the senate committee finally has as much to do with it as the representative bunch, however.

Uncle Sam needs the money, for one thing. He has to have it for his own defensive purposes and for the lease-lending of supplies to the other democracies, including Russia, whether it's a democracy or not.

Quite aside from Uncle Samuel's personal requirements, though, the tax-framers deliberately and maliciously intend to impound governmentally, just as much of the people's dough as they can, to pinch 'em to such an extent that they simply won't be able to spend more than's absolutely essential to provide 'em with the bare necessities of life.

What Is Happening

The idea's this: Our producers of all sorts of stuff in edible, wearable and other usable forms are so concentrating upon defense and lease-lending stuff that there's bound to be an awful shortage of everything for which there's a civilian demand. Scarcity naturally makes for higher prices. The economic name for 'em is inflation. If it would-be buyers incomes all inflated themselves correspondingly it wouldn't make so much difference, but most incomes don't. If not, and prices do, an income that previously was pretty good, won't buy nearly as much as previously; comparatively it shrinks. That's hard on consumers. It may get terrible.

The government can fix nominal compulsory top limits on prices. In fact, it's starting to do so, with Price Administrator Leon Henderson bossing the job.

But, as prices start to push up violently from underneath the prescribed ceilings over 'em, there can't but develop an almost irresistible tendency on the part of dealers in merchandise for which the public is hollering itself hoarse, to bootleg their commodities at whatever figures they can get.

When bootlegging becomes rampant, it's just as much inflation, even if illegal, as if no control had been attempted at all.

Finally the emergency will pass, and then inflation will pop, with a fearful crash and a long subsequent period of abominably hard times will ensue. It's the inevitable historic rule.

Now, is there any scheme by which inflation can be prevented at its source?

The tax-framers think there is. Their notion's to sock consumerism with such treasury levies that it just naturally won't have enough left to buy more than the skimpiest modicum of what it wants.

Among other items, income taxation will be enormously hiked.

That may not quite do the business, though. It'll work so far as millionaires and big companies are concerned. They'll look ahead and save up in anticipation of collection day. The trouble will be with the smaller fry, who'll be apt to spend as they go along, will be flat broke at collection time—and even Uncle Sam can't extract moisture from an already pressed brick.

Hence evolution of the wage and salary payroll tax plan.

Say you're a hired man for some employer who slips you a weekly or monthly envelope or check. The system will be to have the boss deduct a percentage from each installment and turn it over to the government; what he pays you will be just that much less.

Like Social Security

No doubt you already are familiar with such deductions, for social security.

That, however, has been only a 1 per cent deduction. It's only amounted to a handful of pennies or, at most, to a handful of small silver. Fifteen per cent's the figure mentioned now. And when dividend day arrives, if you've a little nest-egg in some sort of stocks or bonds, out'll come that 15 per cent from the check you get from the company's treasury.

It's referred to as a payroll tax. It isn't a tax, though, on the way that the boss pays. It's a tax on what you were expecting to receive.

Big companies are taxed more because the government wants the cash than in order to make 'em economical. You, the little peewee, aren't taxed so much for revenue as to fix you so you can't spend as freely as you've been doing it.

En Route to Britain

Australia's new representative to Britain's war cabinet, Sir Earle Christmas Grafton Page is shown on arrival at San Francisco by clipper plane. He is en route to his new post, traveling half-way round the world to get there.

T. A. Battell is reported as resting easily and in a satisfactory condition following an operation on Tuesday at the Sanatorium.
